Powder Is Stolen

Thieves last night broke into the powder warehouse of Cramer Bros. near the rock crusher and stole about 150 pounds of the explosive. A fish plate from the railroad track was used to batter the padlock till it could be opened. Tracks of a wagon that drove up to the warehouse showed how the powder was transported.

Crescent Harbor Insurance

A. S. Barnes, who has recently returned from a four months' tour of northern California and southern Oregon counties, brings home a point regarding the coast ports that has been generally missed in speaking of the availability of Crescent City as a harbor for shipping. He says that the insurance companies make a lower rate for vessels entering Crescent City harbor even in its undeveloped condition than they make for service at Eureka.

Funeral of J. L. Myers Held

The funeral of J. L. Myers, who was mistaken for a deer and shot by his hunting companion last Sunday, was held at the Baptist church at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. There was a large attendance of citizens gathered to pay their respects to the memory of their departed fellow, and many floral tokens were in evidence. The sermon was preached by Rev. S. A. Douglas, pastor of the church, and interment was in Odd Fellows cemetery. The stores and business houses of the city closed from 2 to 4 o'clock as a mark of respect to the family of the deceased.

Talk for Land Products Show

Messrs. Wm. M. Colvig and C. W. Robison, representing the Portland Chamber of Commerce, were in the city Tuesday evening interesting our people in the coming Manufacturer's and Land Products show to be held in the Rose City. Early in the evening the gentlemen addressed an audience at the Commercial club assembly room, later speaking at the moving picture theaters. Judge Colvig made his usual eloquent plea, inviting the attendance and cooperation of the people at the show. Mr. Robison asked for a more kindly feeling between the people of southern Oregon and Portland. He said that Portland had made mistakes in the past in her attitude toward this district, but he assured his hearers that that feeling came from the "mossbacks," and that they were about all dead now. Hereafter, he said, Portland would be found working for the development of this territory, and he asked that the hatchet be buried.

Fearful Premature Burial

The doctor who left instructions that a bell watch should be fixed to his wrist after death as a precaution against premature burial may have heard of the similar safeguards prescribed by Meyerbeer. Two men were to watch over him night and day for five days, he directed, and bells were to be rung from his hands and feet to give warning of the slightest movement. Finally, incisions were to be made in his throat.

Harriet Martineau also had a fear of burial alive and left directions for her body to be decapitated, while Lady Burton stipulated for a post mortem examination of her remains. Which we may ask, is greater, the fear of death or the fear of life?—London Standard.

Ducks and Mosquitoes

According to experiments reported by S. G. Dixon, the most formidable animal enemy of the mosquito is the duck, and the introduction of this bird is recommended for eliminating mosquitoes and the diseases which these insects spread from marshy regions, where draining would be too costly. Two artificial ponds were constructed of equal area, ducks being placed in one and fish in the other. The former pool was quickly freed from mosquito pupae and larvae, while in the other they continued to abound. Wild ducks are said to prefer mosquitoes to all other food.—Indianapolis News.

Natural Pottery

Excellent natural pottery is manufactured by nature in the case of a certain cactus. Woodpeckers are apt to excavate nests in the trunk and branches, and in order that it may protect itself against these intruders the plant exudes a sticky juice, which hardens, forming a woody lining to the hole made by the birds. Eventually the cactus dies and withers, but the wooden bowl remains.

Of Course You Believe in Fairies

If you don't, all you have to do is to see the Mutual Masterpicture

Rumpelstiltskin

And then you'll believe in them forever after. It is a beautiful play to look at—magnificent scenery—brilliant costumes—wondrous stage effects—fine acting. The story, too, is mighty interesting—a screen version of one of "Grimm's" most popular tales. It's the play you read about in the "Saturday Evening Post." On the whole a wonderful picture for young and old.

Ancient Swamps of Wyoming

It is estimated by the United States geological survey that the amount of coal in the Rock Springs field, Wyoming, available for mining—that is, with in 3,000 feet of the surface and in beds two and a half feet or more in thickness—exceeds 142,000,000,000 tons. These coal beds are mute but forceful reminders that desert conditions have not always prevailed in this region. Fossil plants, such as palms, figs and magnolias, found at many places in these coal beds, prove that the carbonaceous matter of the coal accumulated in swamps at a time when the climate was as mild as that of Florida at present.

A Beaver's Toilet

It was an interesting sight to watch a beaver at his evening toilet. To begin with, instead of sitting up with his large, flat ribbed tail protruding behind him, he tucked it forward between his hind legs and sat upon it. Then with his hand he carefully combed his long hair, using both hands at the same time. There were many places, however, that could not be reached in this way, for his arms are very short and his body very large, so he combed these otherwise inaccessible places with his hind feet, using first one and then the other. The entire operation was performed with the utmost deliberation and care and occupied more than a quarter of an hour.
